Tetraphenylporphyrin, abbreviated TPP or H₂TPP, is a synthetic heterocyclic compound that resembles naturally occurring porphyrins. Porphyrins are dyes and cofactors found in hemoglobin and cytochromes and are related to chlorophyll and vitamin B₁₂. The study of naturally occurring porphyrins is complicated by their low symmetry and the presence of polar substituents.

The forensic application of the luminol chemiluminescence reaction is reviewed. Luminol has been effectively employed for more than 40 years for the presumptive detection of bloodstains which are hidden from the naked eye at crime scenes and, for this reason, has been considered one of the most important and well-known assays in the field of forensic sciences.

The most notable feature of cyclodextrins is their ability to form solid inclusion complexes (host-guest complexes) with a very wide range of solid, liquid and gaseous compounds by a molecular complexation. In these complexes, a guest molecule is held within the cavity of the cyclodextrin host molecule. Complex formation is a dimensional fit between host cavity and guest molecule.

Cystatin C is a relatively small protein that is filtered from the blood by the kidneys and broken down at a constant rate. A cystatin C test may be used to screen for and monitor kidney dysfunction in special cases.
