Anarchy in International Relations Theory: The Neorealist

In the discipline of international relations there are contending general theories or theoretical perspectives. Realism, also known as political realism, is a view of international politics that stresses its competitive and conflictual side.

Political Realism in International Relations (Stanford

Neorealism or structural realism is a development of realism advanced by Kenneth Waltz in Theory of International Politics. It is, however, only one strand of neorealism. Joseph Grieco has combined neo-realist thinking with more traditional realists. This strand of theory is sometimes called "modern realism". Waltz's neorealism contends that the effect of structure must be taken into account in ...

Offensive realism is a structural theory belonging to the neorealist school of thought first postulated by John Mearsheimer that holds that the anarchic nature of the international system is responsible for aggressive state behavior in international politics. It fundamentally differs from defensive realism, as originally put forward by Kenneth Waltz, by depicting great powers as power ...

"Love your site about the C-119s ... I was at 6922nd RGM, Ashiya, 1956-57, and spent the last part of my tour at K-55 Osan-ni, Korea. Sometime in 1956, there was a loss of one of the C-119s stationed at Ashiya Air Base, rumored to have been buzzing fishing boats off Itazuke and hit a mast, damaging a prop and crashing onto the beach area killing all four crewmen.
