Radar is a detection system that uses radio waves to determine the range, angle, or velocity of objects. It can be used to detect aircraft, ships, spacecraft, guided missiles, motor vehicles, weather formations, and terrain. A radar system consists of a transmitter producing electromagnetic waves in the radio or microwaves domain, a transmitting antenna, a receiving antenna (often the same ...

A waveform is a variable that varies with time, usually representing a voltage or current.. Waveforms are conventionally graphed with time on the horizontal axis.. In electronics, an oscilloscope can be used to visualize a waveform on a screen. A waveform can be depicted by a graph that shows the changes in a recorded signal's amplitude over the duration of recording.
