The Gathas are the hymns composed by Zarathushtra, the Prophet or the founder of the religion of ancient Iran, who lived around 1300 BCE. The verses are composed in the metrical forms of ancient Indo-Iranian religious poetry. It is in a very condensed style of versification, in which standard grammatical construction is more absent than present.

Yasna, the sacred liturgical texts of the Avesta (Zoroastrian scriptures), which include the Gathas, or sacred hymns of Zarathushtra.

AVESTA: YASNA: (English)

The language of the Gathas, Gathic or Old Avestan, belongs to the old Iranian language group that is a sub-group of Eastern families of the Indo-European languages. The dependency on Vedic Sanskrit is a significant weakness in the interpretation of the Gathas, as the two languages, though from a common origin, had developed independently.

Book of FIVE GATHAS The word Gatha means "song", and is derived from Avesta root gā- "to sing". The Gathas are recited as prayers, one on each of the five Gatha days, which occur at the end of the Parsi calendar year. The seventeen chapters of Gathas are included in the seventy-two chapters of the larger text of Yasna.
